[12-15]

Photography was a new hobby in the 1880s. People could take photographs with their own cameras. With a camera, anyone could be an artist.

People needed film. The Kodak Company made it. By the 1980s, Kodak sold most of the film in the world.

Photography changed in the 1990s. People had computers. They took digital pictures. These pictures don't need film.

Kodak lost many customers. It also started losing money. In 2012, it stopped selling film.
