C. Read the story and choose the best answers.The Woman and Her Servants

Once, there was a woman who had two servant girls. The woman always wanted the servants to start work very early. The moment she heard the crowing of the rooster in the morning, she called for the girls to get up.

But the servants were a bit lazy. They hated getting up so early. They wanted to sleep longer in the mornings, especially in winter when it was cold. They grumbled to each other and tried to think of what they could do.

They decided that their problem was the rooster. If they could catch and kill it, then it couldn't crow and they could sleep longer. So that is what they did.

Afterward, they laughed when they thought of how smart they had been. They thought they could now sleep as long as they liked every morning. But that's not what happened. When the woman could no longer hear the rooster crowing in the morning, she woke them up even earlier than before. Often, it was the middle of the night when she made them start work.

D. Read the story and choose T for true or F for FalseThe Shoes

Two brothers both needed new shoes, but neither of them could afford to buy a pair for himself. So they decided to each give half the money and buy just one pair.

The elder brother said he would wear the shoes during the day, and his brother could wear them at night. The younger brother agreed.

In the day, the elder brother visited friends, went to the cinema, and took long walks. At night, he took the shoes off and slept. The younger brother had also paid for the shoes and wanted to wear them, too.

Because his elder brother wore the shoes all day, the younger brother did not go to bed at night. Instead, he walked around all night wearing the shoes. Soon, the shoes became old and worn out. "We need to buy another pair of shoes," said the elder brother. "Can you give me half the money?"

"Oh, no," said the younger brother. "You can buy them for yourself. Then, I will be able to go to bed at night and sleep!"
